Millis Community Media's Internship Program is designed to create opportunities for those with an interest in electronic media through training and engaging in hands-on production experience with live or taped local programming. The program requires all participants to conduct themselves in a mature and professional manner. Interns are required to learn all policies and procedures relating to MCM's operations. Each intern trains at his or her own pace and is asked to sign up for at least one municipal shoot per month and one other production. Attire should be neat, comfortable clothing that is appropriate for the shoot and weather. If an MCM t-shirt is assigned, it should be worn to work. MCM's internship may also qualify for academic credit if it meets school or college requirements.
